The logo for The Cheshire Circuit TCC is a circular emblem. It features a green outer ring with the text "THE CHESHIRE CIRCUIT" at the top and "www.thecheshirecircuit.org" at the bottom. Inside the ring is a yellow triangle. Within the triangle is a black upward-pointing arrow. To the left of the arrow is the text "The Sandstone Trail" and to the right is "The Healey Walk". Below the arrow, the letters "TCC" are prominently displayed in black, with "The Link" written underneath in a smaller font.

As well as an active works at Wharton we see clear signs of the old river moorings, old river engineering and man-made remains of when the river was busy with commercial ships; days long gone. Today, however, on the west bank we see the still active Cheshire rock salt mine with its winding head and very large stockpile of rock salt waiting for the winter roads.
